

Jodi Gibson

President & CEO

Zoological Society of Milwaukee

Jodi Gibson is an accomplished senior nonprofit and social responsibility executive with extensive leadership experience at Fortune 200 companies and top nonprofit organizations. Born in Milwaukee and proud graduate of nearby Ripon College, she is dedicated to further elevating Milwaukee's reputation as a thriving cultural destination.

As president and chief executive officer of the Zoological Society of Milwaukee, Jodi provides strategic direction and leadership to an award-winning nonprofit organization. She has helped champion the organization's largest capital campaign and strengthened its vital partnership with the Milwaukee County Zoo, a place she first enjoyed visiting as a child.

Previously, Jodi served as the vice president of global corporate social responsibility at the Kellogg Company and held a similar role at JCPenney. Earlier in her career, Jodi led corporate partnership development at the national office of Feeding America, the country's largest domestic hunger-relief organization.
