

Supervisor and the Law

Did you know that managers and supervisors are often not aware of their role as a legal agent for their organization? They need a clear understanding of potential legal landmines that could impact the workplace. Managers must have the ability to identify risk, understand when issues need to be addressed, and take appropriate actions. This program provides an introduction to various employment laws and best practices for minimizing risk in your organization.

Learning Objectives:

- Explore the role of legal agent and the implications for managers and supervisors.
- Identify employment laws and actions required to remain compliant.
- Review best practices to reduce the risk of litigation in all phases of the employment life cycle.
- Recognize the importance of documentation to support employment decisions.
- Determine when and how to partner with HR.
